MR. BRADFORD.

A DECENT I respect for the patience of the public, will induce me to be as concile as possible in my observations on a few of the many things advanc'd by my enemies. Nor should I think, there necessary, had I not call'd upon them to bring forth their charges. The profusion of abuse within which these few are involved as it cannot affect me, so is it, beneath my notice.

Their writer states, as a Criminal charge, that I had not long acted as a deputy in the Surveyor's Office, before I distinguished myself by demanding the memorable double fee? And did I in that capacity after being counseled demand the advanced fee according to law? It was a crying sin in me no doubt. And what must prove the charge of Avarice beyond a possibility of contradiction, is, that I became a common sufferer, was obliged to pay the advanced fee, and could not possibly derive any benefit from it, my salary being fixed, & by no means depending upon the fees in Office. As to my conduct to the people both then, and ever since, they are the best judges, I will let them to review it, and to think, speak, and act for themselves.

The next capital charge it appears is, that I did not answer a question at a particular time, and that I afterwards give an explication by private letter.

This letter has been published at my request, to which I refer the reader. It might have been observed, that independent of every other circumstance, I had a right to have purchased the Entry in question, if I had chosen to do so. This writers attempts to fix the falsehood, it must be confess'd are rather unfortunate when his very ground-work is an absolute falsehood. I have no where said as he asserts, that the land in question was the property of Wilkinson and Turpin. The property I presume is Calmes's. In the letter alluded to after appealing to Mr. Crittenton's knowledge, who was undoubtedly better acquainted with all the circumstances referred to than myself; I observed that they were in possession of the land; I imagine they will not deny living on it. Contradicted with these facts how truly amiable must the character of this more than candid, charitable and humane writer appear.

The public most know too that I wrote a letter to the States Attorney, and that I offered a sum to Mr. Turpin. How foolish people counteract their own designs, by making the man they wish to ruin, of such immense consequence even his private letters are dragged before the publick. Mr. Attorney I suppose is the superior whom I have treated with haughty airs, and Mr. Turpin the poor and unfortunate, whom I have treated with violence. Have they complained to you, Mr. writer as the Knight Errant of all distressed wretchedness? They should undoubtedly have done it to me as the proper person to redress their grievances. If I could really think the public interested in these things, I would demand a publication of that and another letter to the States Attorney. I said in effect, that Mr. Turpin was a propagator of scandal; if he wishes me to support it, at his particular expense I will do so. In this manner the Public may rest assured the present contest originated; and is it this Mr. writer which you have kept such a fuss and ado about? Ridiculous!

My friends observe the e is much pains taken to make the people believe, that I have treated Mr. Harris ungenerously. I would ask how he should be treated? As the aggressor, he took care to time his publications in such manner, as to prevent my applying before court, at which time he was bound to his good behaviour. He still lends his name to vent every species of abuse; and complains that his hands are tied. What does he want? To shew the absurdity of this article, it is only necessary to observe, that he claims the merit of these pieces. If he is the real Author, he is certainly under great obligations to me; for converting him in the course of a week from a modern Sir Ge'theron to a writer of Tales, and by the next, qualifying him to write Criticsm, and History. Let any one compare "Those who know me, know that I am no writer" with his late productions, and they will be made sensible of this; or will conclude that he is not the Author, as he pretends. And now Mr. real Author a few words with you after pronouncing great things, and torturing your brain over little ones; what have you produced but contradictions, absurdities, bombast and falsehood? Had you have mixed less of the foul corruption of your heart with the invention of your head; you might have entitled yourself to some credit as a writer of Romance. If you are that real friend to mankind that you would be thought; you will sign your own name to your next piece, that we may know, and look up to you, as the true pattern of all perfection, an bright example for imitation. But if as I suspect know you to be a hypocrite, and impostor; there is but little hope of moving you on this principle. And now to conclude if you dare renounce the Character of Lurking Assasin, own your pieces, and submit your conduct to a fair discussion, we shall see your name to your next piece. I will then furnish you with a few facts to decant upon. If you will not do this, you may write as long as you can find a man of your party to base, as to lend his name; and it is probable that silence will be the part of

H. MARSHALL.

Mr. Bradford.

THE Freedom of the press is one of the greatest Bulwarks of Liberty, and can never be restrained by Despotic Governments. --- I can say as Elihu said, I am full of matter the spirit within me constraineth me, behold my belly is as new wine which hath no vent, it is ready to burst like new bottles. I will speak that I may be revenged, I will open my lips and say, let me not accept any man's person neither let me give flattering titles unto man, for I know now not to give flattering titles, in doing my master would soon take me away. --- What is the use of the Law? To secure the property of what we enjoy, and the objects of it, concern Persons, their Estates, Crimes, Misdemeanors, Courts of Justice &c. That all power of Repealing or Suspending Laws, or the Execution of Laws, by any Authority, without consent of the Representatives of the people, is injurious to their rights, and ought not to be exercised: if so is not the good people of Kentucke District, imposed on by some of our principal men telling the people, that Certificates issued for the two expeditions against the Shawane and waubash Indians, will not answer certain rates in this District, and will not receive certificates, but in case of Gold or Silver. What says the Law? And be it further enacted that the Certificates thus issued, shall be receivable in discharge of ANY of the Taxes which may hereafter become due in the said District. I am in duty bound to cry aloud against such injustice to every Magistrate who is the good people Trustees and Servants, and on oath to do them justice. what says the Scripture concerning Magistrates? 2 Sam. 3. 4. The God of Israel said, the rock of Israel spake to me; he that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God. Psa. 83. 3. 4. Defend the poor and fatherless: do justice to the afflicted and needy, deliver the poor and needy rid them out of the hand of the wicked. Rom. 13. 3. 4. For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil: will they not be afraid of the power, do that which is good and thou shall have praise of the same, for he is the minister of God to those for good, but if thou do that which is evil, be afraid for he beareth not the sword in vain, for he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doth evil. I beseech every Magistrate of this District, to proclaim against their Clerks when they refuse to receive Certificates for the Conveyance of Land &c. It is an admiration to me how they can go contrary to the letter of the law in refusing of certificates. Follow not a multitude to do evil, neither shall thou speak in a cause to decline a witness to WRECK judgment.

I am yours, &c. J. SINCERE.

To Agricola.

YOU have taken the liberty to animadvert upon the publication of the intended Seminary, proposing a few silly and impertinent questions, which I shall take no notice of. Your offious performance reflects no reputation, indicating a Spirit of alienation, which in every attitude I view with contempt. As you have been so personal with me, you will please to leave your proper name with the Printer, and oblige

JOHN FILSON.

THE FULL BLOODED HORSE

M O G U L
WILL stand the ensuing season at my house, and will cover mares at forty shillings the season, payable in cattle, sheep, or tobacco, on or before the first day of November next.

Mogul is a fine horse fifteen hands high, and was got by the noted import-ed horse Lath, his dam Poll Flaxen, who was also dam of Brimmer, and was got by Jolly Roger out of the imported mare Mary Gray. 3455 HORATIO TURPIN.

Mr. Prince.

OUR frontiers, have long been harassed, by a cruel, and unrelenting force; and tamely submitted to by our Commanding Officers, who have it fully in their power, to prevent almost every act of violence, committed by the enemy: and is it not unsufferable, that a handful of Indians, should be permitted without opposition, to butcher and plunder, our worthy Citizens, and force the malefactors taken of it, by the officers. Was it to judge an Officer, on trial, for suffering murder to be committed by his neglect of duty, I would punish him as severe, as tho' he had done it with his own hand: This has certainly been the case, with a County Lieutenant in this district, who prized his popularity more than the public good. However, the Elections being over, and the Governors orders arriving, for carrying on Offensive, as well as Defensive measures; the excuse of not having power to procure provisions, will no longer answer his purpose, and I hope something decisive will shortly be done for the good of the district as large.

Letters from France, by Mondays mail, advise, that their High Mightinesses have formally notified, by their Ambassador at Paris, to the French court, the following resolutions: "That the troubles between that province and the Prince Stadholder, having been happily terminated, and his Serene Highness re-established in all his dignities that therefore the satisfaction demanded relative to the impeded journey of the Princess of Orange, would also be immediately arranged with the King of Prussia; that consequently there being no more ency's in the country, the resolution of the 10th of September (to demand succours from France ceased to have its effect; that their Noble and Great Mightinesses thought they ought to give notice of this, as soon as possible, to his Most Christian Majesty, not doubting that he would take such interest in this happy re-establishment of the tranquility of the country, which he had ever shewn in striving to rife discord and promote the prosperity of the nation; to which end the affection of his Majesty would always be acceptable to them." A decisive blow this to the infamous intrigues of a French Court, and a total dissolution of the unnatural treaty lately formed between France and the Dutch,

A Bolton paper of the 7th inst. (January) says: Saturday last was brought to this town, under escort, the famous Capt. Luke Day, a principal insurgent during the late commotions in this Commonwealth and for whom a reward of one hundred pounds was offered for apprehending him by Government. He was taken by surprise at an inn in New-Hampshire, in Hampshire State, about sunset, on the first instant by Major Luther Emes, Lieutenant Isaac Griffell, and Mr. Elijah Dunbar. He had not cross'd Connecticut river above ten minutes before he was a prisoner. His seat of residence was in Vermont State.

THE public are cautioned against counterfeits. Dollars, now in circulation, dated 1786; they are well executed, and may deceive even a workman, if not closely examined. They may be known from the true by the following marks: On the head side, the nose and mouth are larger than the true, the S in Carolus is smaller, and not well cut; the II larger, and the L deeper in proportion than the other letters: The figures 86 of the date, not so full as the others, and are very rough cut: On the reverse, the crown is larger, and not so full and deep as the true: The head of the pillars are larger and bolder than on the true ones: The metal appears very well until rubbed, when it has a copper cast: The weight is the same as the true ones.

On closing the election of Fayette county, last Saturday for Delegates to the Convention, which is to form a Constitution for the Government of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, the following was the state of the polls.
